Lawrence:

Back in December RWQCB staff approached Brian, Jason Golumbskie, and I with doing an informational update on Navy efforts with cleanups, dredging, and highlighting various other aspects of the good things the Navy does for San Diego Bay. Brian and Jason ran this by leadership at NRSW and NAVFAC SW and all thought it would be a good idea.

I am pulling all the potential subjects together, and it occurred to me that one of the cleanup actions that I could highlight would be the NTC Boat Channel cleanup. I have not yet provided any kind of summary overview to the Board staff committing us to any particular subject, and wanted to check with you to see if the BRAC office would be okay with me providing information on that project. This is intended to be a 30K overview without much technical detail – would just highlight that it is one of the cleanups the Navy has accomplished in the Bay without providing much specific detail. Personally I think it would be a rather obvious omission if we did not include it and it seems to me, at least on the surface, to be a good news story. As our presentation is an informational item on the agenda, members of the public would not be able to ask questions, although the Board members may.

Please let me know thoughts as soon as you can as I owe the staff a summary of items we might discuss by the end of the week.

Thanks.
